On 3 December 1953, the solidity of the soil at Mahlwinkel was tested. Although the ground was covered with gross, the field was not suitable for air activity by operational aircraft. Previously, the field had been guarded by two civilians from Mahlwinkel, but recently it was unquarded. According to rumors, the field would be used as posture land for sheep in the near future.

25X1 Comment. Previous reports contained information on the poor condition of Mahlvinkel airfield. No indications of an intended strengthening of the soil or the utilization of runway mats have been reported so far.
